

My Mission Statement

I am a beloved child of God. Redeemed by the work of Jesus Christ when He paid the penalty for my sin on the cross, died, was buried and rose again! God's great love, even when I was dead in my trespasses, made me alive together with Christ. It is by God's grace I am saved and this is where I stand, firmly planted in God's Word. My faith in His name gives me boldness and access, with confidence into the throne room where I will worship God for all eternity alongside my fellow believers. Together with them, I will boast only in Jesus. I will exalt His name and His word. For my chief end is to glorify God and enjoy Him forever. My primary purpose in life is to know who God is according to His word - the foundation upon which I stand - which opens my eyes to His attributes, character, power, wisdom, and deeds - giving me more and more reason to enjoy Him, to worship Him, to trust Him. Especially because He has said that I am His workmanship, created in Christ Jesus, for good works. Knowing this about myself affects my desires, my mindset, who and what I love, my life purposes, and motivates my daily tasks:

1. Firstly, I have been called to be a wife, a woman created as my husband's help meet, commanded to submit to him and to respect him as the church does Christ.
2. Secondly, God has placed His two girls: Brielle and Eleanna under my care. God has commanded me to raise these children in the knowledge of God, and I am also called to love them and disciple them.
3. Next, I am a disciple of Jesus and disciple maker, called to journey alongside other women, teaching them what is good and right and true, training them as a Titus 2:3-5 woman whose heart is focused on Christ.
4. Finally, I am a teacher with master's degree in curriculum development and who specializes in reading and writing. As a homeschool parent, with years of classroom experience and an education master's degree, I've learned how to incorporate the love of reading and writing into all aspects of my homeschool classroom. I've found that it's impossible to separate the subjects from one another. For example, if you can read, write, and do math well - then science will become easy for you. If you can read, history is fascinating. If you know history you know how hard scientists had to work in order to learn what they learned. What I've learned and incorporated in my own classroom, I teach and share with others.

As a teacher, my goal is to give readers and writers of all ages, in any walk of life, the tools to pick up anything - especially their Bible - and read it on their own. Why? God has richly poured His word into my heart and mind, so I live to help others experience the unfathomable joy that comes with reading God's Word. If any student can read and know who God is according to what HE said about Himself on their own, then I've done my job as a reading and writing teacher well. All you need are tools. I can give you those tools. In short, my aim is to be a lifelong learner and to give other learners the tools that I use to accomplish this feat.
